

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for updating information on security , in which the client is connected with a server through a network, the server
5 including a storage device that is managed by the client, the storage device storing security information, the method comprising updating the security information stored in the storage device that the client manages in the server.